The annual commencement of the Pittsburg Central High School was held last night at the Bijou Theater. Every seat in the theater was occupied and but little standing room was left. On the stage a pleasing feature was presented by the array of bright and fresh looking graduates. The exercises were conducted by Principal Wood. The opening was with prayer by the Rev. Dr. W. J. Reid. An excellent and well rendered programme was commenced with a chorus, "Wake Not Dreaming Maiden," by the young ladies of the normal class. Following was an essay, "Graduated, What Then?" by Miss Daisy W. Lemmon, in which was delineated the glorious possibilities of the future for the graduates. Miss Bertha Ewart, between whom and Miss Lemmon the second honors of the academical class had been divided was excused from reading, "In the Air," was the subject taken by Edward Godfrey, who defined the value and uses of that necessary sub-stance. A song, "Time and Tide," was given by the already well-known vocalist, Miss Edith Harris. Miss Bertha Stein gave in an artistic maner the beauties of "The Circle." "Arabian Nights and American Days," a comparison between the myths of ancient Oriental times and the realities in the shape of useful inventions of the present days, was given by Miss Anne McConway. "The United States should adopt a more vigorous foreign policy," was the assertion made by Wm. J. Reid in a well delivered and argumentative address on the subject. A chorus 'Viva l' America" was given, after which C. DeMoss Emmons declared that "The United States should not adopt a more vigorous foreign policy." Mr. Emmons was equally as positive and convincing in his address as Mr.

"The Advancement of Woman" was the subject taken by Miss Mary R. Loeffler, who followed the history of woman from the time of Eve to the present, and gave convincing arguments for her equal rights. A second song, "The Three Fishers," was given by Miss Harris, tollowed by an oration on "The Industrial System of the Future," by John W. Boyce. Miss Alexandra M. McCrickart delivered the Miss Alexandra M. McCrickart delivered the valedictory address. The presentation of diplomas by Principal Wood concluded the exercises. The first honor of the academical class was taken by Miss McCrickart. The second honor was, as stated, divided between Miss Lemmon and Miss Ewart. Miss Mary R. Loeffier took the first honor of the normal class, and Miss margaret Clancy the second honor.

on the programme. It was an address by Walter Billow, a colored graduate. Principal Wood announced that, while Mr. Billow had not succeeded in winning the honor of being placed on the programme, yet as he was closely connected with the school, having commenced his education in the little annex to the Pittsburg Normal School, he was sure the audience ald be pleased to hear him on his favorite topic, "The Negro."

Mr. Billow delivered in an excellent manner a statement of the social condition of the negro race. He showed the drawbacks and obstacles placed in their way by the years of slavery, but held that the future was a bright path before them. The speaker won much appliause. He is not the first colored graduate of the High School, three or four having preceded him, but none recently.

DECORATED THE STAGE.

Allegheny High School Graduates to the Number of 43 Greeted the Eyes of a Large Audience at the Opera House Last Evening-Essays, Orations, Debates and Music.

The Commencement exercises of the Allegheny High School took place in the Grand Opera House last night. When the curtain arose at 8 o'clock there was disclosed to the large audience a stage decorated, not with ligent looking boys and girls who were about to have their names handed down as the graduates of 1889. Principal Dodds, Superintendent Morrow, Chairman Young, of the Board of Controllers; Chairman J. H. Trimble, of the High School Committee, and several others prominent in educational interests, also occupied seats on the stage.

The exercises opened with an overture by the Opera House orchestra. Rev. D. F. McGill then offered a prayer, and Waldo Cherry followed with the salutatory. He chose as a sub-ject the class motto, "Carpe Diem," and pointed out how success comes to all through opportu-

A song, "Ocean Music," was sung by the class, after which David C. Wills discussed the negro problem. He had three suggestions by er of which he thought the problem might either of which he thought the problem might be effectually and permanently settied: First, by the adoption of the Northern idea of social equality; second, by complete separation, allow-ing the colored race to occupy States by them-selves and have an independent government of their own (but this, he thought, was not prob-able), and, third, amalgamation. The latter he thought very likely to ultimately result in the solution of the problem, and he had many good things to say about the colored people which tended to create favor for this theory. "Birds in Literature" was the subject of an Over in Allegheuy the children will miss the annual jubilee in the parks for the first time in many years. Entering the room, the visitors instinctively haited at the grand sight before them. Japanese and Chinese decorations of manifold hues, long streamers of all colors, gigantic umbrellas, immense sunshades, and all kinds of similar wall decorations were profusely yet artistically arranged. Intermingled with all this splendor were many flags, among which the Star Spangled Banner was most conspicuous. Looking toward the rear end of the hall, the vision rested upon a large wall of plauts and flowers. From window to window the stretch of tropical beauties was almost enchanting. Gigantic palms in oriental vases, exquisite latauras with leaves which overshadowed the floor for several yards, rare ferns of various exotic species were interspersed in very harmonious order, and the whole looked like a beautiful wall of verdure. In front of this floral wall a temporary stage was arranged for the musicians. The Towara generating the stage of the stage of the susicians. temporary stage was arranged for the musicians. The Toerge orchestra furnished the instrumental music of the evening, and the Apollo Quartet rendered a very select programme of the sweetest of popular ballads.

"Everything had been arranged for, and the committee would have rented the house for $30 per month, when a real estate agent stepped in and claimed that he had the control of it. He said he had judgments against the property, but would not rent it for less than $61 Committeeman Emmerick put in an objection against this. Those who favored renting were Messrs. Einstein and Robinson.

"It is almost too late in the season now to begin operations, and it will take too much time to look around for other sites. The houses that are suitable, the owners will not rent, but want to sell their property. The name of hospital or sanitarium is obnoxious to some people, and they do not care to have it in their immediate vicinity. They think that it would depreciate the value of their property, and imagine that they could not rent the house afterward. The committee will go out and look at the ground again and try to make a compromise with the Sauer people. If they can do this it is probable that they will rent the house for the summer. Next winter we can look around and secure a better place. I think that the house could be furnished for about $500. We should make provision for about $500. Mr. James Dell, of John R. & A. Murdoch, was the florist artist who had made the device and brought out the beautiful harmony of the flowers with exquisite taste.

THE MUSIC AND SPEECHES

attracted general attention. Soon after 8 o'clock the guests of the association began to arrive, and in a few minutes the place was crowded to the very doors. The evening's programme reflected great credit upon the committee, because it was full of a variety which constituted nothing but the best and happlest details. The Toerge Orchestra opened with an overture, "The Jolly Robbers." Then the Apolio Quintet Club rendered a song "Ob, Hail us, Le Free!" and Miss Agnes Vogel sang an arietta from the "Freischuetz." There were also a number of speeches made by several of the guests. The tenor of all of these orations was one string of eulogies of Pittsburg as a city, of Pittsburgers generally and their hospitality, and then the Pittsburg ladies received a tribute of thanks for the kindness they had shown the visiting ladies.

The speech of the evening, however, was an address by Dr. W. T. English on the subject, "The Relation of the Physician and the Sanitary Plumber." "I sincerely thank you, ladies and

The doctor was repeatedly applauded during his oration. Then the Quintet Club rendered a few more brilliant songs, until near 11 o'clock, when the entire party adjourned to the refreshment hall, where a very tempting spread awaited them all.

In the meantime the hall was cleared, and dancing remained the order for the rest of the night.

Some time ago the tobacco manufacturers at Louisville, Richmond, Middletown, O., St. Louis and Jersey City formed a pool or combination for the purpose of maintaining prices. The jobbers, to whom the manufacturers sell their goods, had to sign an agreement not to sell for a cent more or less than that fixed by the manufacturers. About three months ago the Legislature passed a law abolishing trusts and combinations, and the jobbers were restrained from selling at the combination price. The latter were bound by an agreement not to sell below the price, and as a result the grocers jumped in and began underselling them. This diverted the trade to them, and the tobacco jobbers, who could not make up the loss on something else, had to quit altogether. A meeting of the tobacco manufacturers was held a few days ago, and schemes devised for getting around the law.

The delegation of Southside Turners that were in attendance at the National Turnfest at Cincinnati came in on the 9 o'clock train over the Lake Eric Railroad last night. They were met at the depot by about two hundred of their friends, and headed by the Germania Band and Bradley's Drum Corps, they marched to the hall on Fourteenth street. At the hall a general good time was had. Fritz Koch got the ninth individual prize, and the class got the minth individual prize, and the class got the twenty-second prize in first grade at the Turnfest, where about 1,600 Turners contested for the prizes.

On his mother's side Mr. Morgan was descended from the De Kays. of Orange county, New York. In 1804 his father and family removed to Morganza. Aaron Burr stopped at the Morgan homestead and tried to enlist their sympathy in his nefarious schemes to found an empire. The Morgans, however, got rid of him promptly, and informed the President of the traitor's route. They afterward testified against him in Burr's trial. In 1832 James B. SOME NOVELTIES IN BOTANY.

Whose Leaves Sprout as They Fall-Thanks to Henry Phipps, Jr.

The Western Pennsylvania Botanical Society held a very interesting meeting at the pariors of the Pittsburg Library last evening with the President, Dr. Hamilton, in the chair. In the course of routine business, Mr. C. C. Mellor offered a resolution cordially thanking Mr. Henry Phipps, Jr., for his gift to Allegheny City, the aquatic conservatory, which will form such an admirable addition to the set of greenhouses now in Allegheny Parks. The resolution predicted that the botanists of Western Pennsylvania would find great pleasure in studying the rare specimens which would find a place in the collection. It was adopted, and the Corresponding Secretary was directed to forward a copy of the resolution to Mr.

It was announced that an effort was being made to organize a joint botanical expedition. Several valuable contributions recently made were acknowledged and admired. Superintendent Ferguson submitted two rare specimens: One a Bryophillum, a gigantic house leek, the peculiarity of which was that when a leaf dropped on the earth a new plant sprouted from each serreture or division. The other was a crassipes or water plant, an odd collection of bulbs with a stalk supporting a small flower. When the seeding process begins, the flower stalk turns over and grows downward into the water. The two specimens were much admired:

The Requiem, Not the Natnl Song of the Big Coal Combine Being Sung. An evening paper states that the Mononga-hela river coal operators are about to consoli-date and form one gigantic company, to con-trol the entire output of the Monongahela and trol the entire output of the Monongahela and the majority of the Kanawha mines. It was further stated that the Pittsburg and Southern Coal Company, composed of Joseph Walton & Co., O'Nell & Co., W. H. Brown Sons, Thomas Fawcett & Son. C. Jutte & Son, Horner & Roberts, George Lysle, J. S. Neel. Time Coal Company, Marmet Coal Company, S. S. Crump & Co. (formerly J. C. Risher & Co.), was at the head of the movement and that the Standard Oil Company had offered to take a big block of stock in the proposed new company; that small operators would either be taken in or their holdings purchased; that Eastern capitalists had offered to take stock, and that the business would hereafter be so regulated as to yield a fair profit.

The article was shown to Mr. I. N. Bunton, and he stated that in the main it was true, save that the Standard Oil Company had nothing to do with the movement, and that it was some 18 months old, and had, as far as he knew, about fallen through. He stated that about all outlined had been proposed, and that the preliminary work of consolidation had been commenced last fall a year, but owing to diverse interests that could not be harmonized, there would not be anything done at present, if ever.

would not be anything done at present, it ever.

As Mr. Bunton is a member of one of the firms connected with the attempted combine, it will be generally agreed that be knows what he is talking about. It is generally admitted that the industry is quite sickly, notwithsfanding its enormous wealth, and it is so gizantic that a great deal of medicine will be required to cure it. What seems to promise best results is water connection with Lake Eric, which will open a field where there is little likelihood of competition for many years to come, and by making ore carriage cheaper cause a greater consumption of coal hereabouts.

The Most Unique Collegiate Rennies of Mrs. W. D. Rankin Gives Her Version of How Her Friend Got Hurt.

SHE THOUGHT THE DOCTOR HASTY.

Her Denial of All Correspondence is Contradicted by Mr. Pitts.

A SAD CASE OF POSITIVE INFELICITY

The sensational episode at the Central

Hotel on Wednesday afternoon, between a bank cashier of McKeesport and a professional man of Allegheny City, was one of the chief topics of conversation yesterday. THE DISPATCH gave a complete account of the transaction yesterday morning. The names of the persons interested are now public property. The professional man is W. D. Rankin, M. D., of No. 103 Sandusky street, Allegheny City; the McKeesport business man is E. W. Pitts, cashier of the People's Bank, of McKeesport. Until Mrs. Rankin could be seen-and it was impossible to see her Wednesday night, as no one knew where she was-it was scarcely fair to give her name. She was the person who would be most hurt by any publications regarding an affair of Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Rankin called at THE DISPATCH office to give her version of the story. She is a girlish-looking woman, not looking more than her age as given by herself, 19 years, pretty and intelligent in appearance, and genuinely modest in her deportment. She was naturally nervous, as a result of the ordeal she had gone through, and was occasionally in-coherent and wandering in her remarks, but she managed to maintain considerable self-

Mrs. Rankin was accompanied by an elderly lady in whose house she stayed on Wednesday night after the occurrence at the hotel. This lady, who would not give her name, was with Mrs. Rankin on the Johnstown trip, and said that she was prepared to corroborate Mrs.

Rankin's story.
"I never met Mr. Pitts before I went to Johnstown on Tuesday of last week," Mrs. Rankin said; "so that it is not true, I had known him for some time. I didn't even meet him in Johnstown, either, but only became ac-

WITH HIM ON THE TRAIN oming home. He and another McKeesport centleman were with two or three ladies who live at McKeesport, and who are of the highest The elderly lady said this was true, and that Mr. Pitts had acted in a very gentlemanly and obliging manner, among other things getting them cups of coffee on the way home.

"It is true," Mrs. Rankin continued, "that I did go to Johnstown against my husband's wishes; but, as he never took me any place, I thought I had a right to go, especially when this lady went with me. I never received any letter from Mr. Pitts, asking me to meet him. I met him at the postoffice corner as I got off the car from Allegheny, and the reason I went to the Central Hotel was that I considered it imprindent to stand talking to him on the street, and I suggested that we go to the hotel parlor. Mr. Pitts had acted in a very gentlemanly and imprudent to stand talking to him on the street, and I suggested that we go to the hotel parlor. I didn't come over to Pittsburg to meet him, and if I had done so or intended any wrong, I would not have gone to the Central Hotel, where I am known and where Dr. Rankin has patients. When the Doctor came into the parlor I got up to introduce him to Mr. Pitts, but the Doctor didn't wait for that, but rushed upon Mr. Pitts. The story of the assault, as published in The DISPATCH, is correct. The doctor wouldn't have done it, though, if he hadn't been intoxicated. The doctor can't have anything else against my character except this story, and if I intended to do wrong I wouldn't have gone to that hotel parlor, where I knew persons, and where everyone could see us.

CONSIDERABLY OVERESTIMATED.

CONSIDERABLY OVERESTIMATED. "I want to say," Mrs. Rankin remarked, "that all the papers are wrong about my age. I am only 19 years old, instead of 23. I have een married for two years, and lived very happily with Dr. Rankin for a year and a half. It was during the holidays that the trouble | at less than 15 cents.

[Here Mrs. Rankin went into a statement largely made up of recriminations, which bring in her husband and third parties, and which it would scarce help the case any to publish, unless substantiated in a more formal way.] Mrs. Rankin then explained where she went Wednesday afternoon after leaving the hotel. Wednesday afternoon after leaving the hotel. She said she went directly home, then visited Dr. Rankin's two sisters and took supper with them. After supper she went back to the Doctor's house; but she says he drove her away. She spent the night with the lady who was with her, as already mentioned.

"I am going to Dr. Rankin's parents' home in Washington county on the 3:5 train," Mrs. Rankin said. "I hadn't enough money to pay my fare and the Doctor's sisters gave me some."

my fare and the Doctor's assers gave me some."

Upon being cross-questioned as to whom she had come over to Pittsburg to visit, and if she didn't receive a letter from some one, Mrs, Rankin replied:

"Yes, I did get a letter from a lady in McKeesport to meet her at 3 o'clock on Fifth avenue in front of the People's store, to go shopping. I am not certain about her name, and I have lost the letter. I had it with me at the hotel; but it disappeared in the excitement." ment."
"Did you ever write to Mr. Pitts," was asked.

"No. I never did, nor he to me," Mrs. Rankin replied.
"But Mr. Pitts says he did receive two letters from you."
"Mr. Pitts didn't get any letter from me," said Mrs. Rankin. "One of his friends may. I wrote twice to the lady in McKeesport."
"I want you to say," she went on, "that I never complained to anyone about the doctor's illtreating me. I never spoke of it to anyone except since this trouble."

SHE WROTE HIM TWICE.

What Mr. Pitts Shys of His Correspondence . With Mrs. Rankin.

Mr. E. W. Pitts was seen by a DISPATCH reporter yesterday. He is very much broken up over the affair, and says he regrets it on acount of the disgrace to his family.
"I met Mrs. Rankin for the first time on an excursion to Johnstown." said Mr. Pitts, "and I left the train at McKeesport. A few days later I received a letter from her asking me to later I received a letter from her asking me to meet her in the city. I paid no attention to it, when I received another and agreed to meet her, and in a letter I sent her named the Central Hotel parlor. I very foolishly destroyed the two letters she sent me, and, therefore, cannot prove my statement. We were talking in the hotel parlor when a gentleman entered the room, and she said 'here is my husband,' and I arose, expecting an introduction. Instead he gave me three licks on the head with an umbrella and cuspidor, and I ran downstairs, leaving my hat in the room. I then went down to Bennett's and got another hat, and after thinking the matter over and knowing I had done nothing wrong, or intended to do anything wrong, I returned to the hotel and found that the doctor had gone."

When the Board of Awards will meet again has not been decided yet. The differences of has not been decided yet. The differences of opinion between Chief Bigelow, of the Dopartment of Public Works, and the other members of the board have not been settled yet. One of the features that came to the surface yesterday was the question as to what shall be done with the contracts for sewers forfeited by James McKnight. Chief Bigelow and Mayor McCallin both say that there should be a readvertisement, and that being the case, it will likely be done.

TO CROSS BATS AT MT. GRETNA.

Recent Date.

The Pittsburg alumni of Trinity College,
Hartford, Conn., will be very busy at the Union depot this morning welcoming their associates from the woolly West, this city being the ren-desvous for the alumni of Trinity College who live west of the Allegheny Mountains. Their object is to journey to Mt. Gretna, where a college reunion is to take place next week.

Although not so extensively known as some of the nation's collegiate institutions, Trinity College, of Hartford, Conn., has many alumni, with representatives in every walk of life and scattered all over the country. It happens that Millionaire Cole man, the rather eccentric that Millionaire Cole man, the rather eccentric owner of Mt. Gretna, Lebanon county, is a graduate of Trinity. To him is due the conception of a most novel reunion of his college associates and alumni.

Mr. Coleman, determined to do nothing by halves, has chartered three special trains, which will successively deposit at Mt. Gretna on Wedneseay, Thursday and Friday of next week the baseball teams of Princeton, Columbia and Yale Colleges for the purpose of measuring skill on the diamond with the Trinity nine, and when the adherents of each college get to howling around the Mt. Gretna baseball park the scene will be interesting. Miscellaneous amusements are also outlined, and fishing, shooting, eating drinking and other warm weather pleasures will be liberally provided.

One of the most prominent members of Trinity alumni is Mr. Orr Buffington, of Kittanning, who will act as a committee, in conjunction with some Pittsburgers, in taking care of those who meet in this city to-day.

Her Grent Misfortune. Mrs. Gertrude Lowstetter, whose husband is South Fourth street and Beltzhoover avenue yesterday afternoon to visit friends on Troy Hill, Allegheny, carrying in the bosom of her dress a wallet containing $330. When she arrived at her destination she discovered that she had lost the money somewhere on the way. She reported the matter to the police, and said the money had been received by her from the sale of her little home, and was all she had.

A Lutheran Sunday School Convention The pastors and teachers of the Lutherar Sunday schools in and about Pittsburg and Stinday schools in and about Fittsburg and Allegheny met in an all-day session yesterday in the Memorial Evangelical Lutheran Church, East street, Allegheny. Rev. J. Q. Waters was elected President, Rev. E. F. Krauss Secre-tary. Subjects of interest were discussed to the profit of the many delegates present.

Charged With Embezzlement. James Patterson, the insurance agent, who is charged before Alderman Patterson, of the Thirteenth ward, with embezzlement by Louise M. Chemically Pure and Perfectly Clear Water Near at Hand. Mesara, Haller, Beck & Co. are now giv-Messrs. Haller, Beck & Co. are now giving away large quantities of the pure water that condenses from the evaporated artesian water used at their saltworks on Rebecca street, Allegheny. A chemical analysis shows this condensed water to be perfectly pure. Messrs. Heenan and Brown, both residents of Allegheny, who have just returned from Johnstown, report great quantities of filth being dumped into the river there, and say that if the people could see these dumps they certainly would not drink any river water.
